GLLaB puts 100 back to work in a month

A HUNDRED local people have got new jobs in just one month, thanks to Greenwich Local Labour and Business (GLLaB), the council-sponsored employment and training agency.

Its partnership with local firms is bringing benefits to businesses as well.

One of the newest recruits is Kizito Ssengooba, who has just started work as a senior administrator with Greenwich-based bakery Paul Rhodes in King William Walk.

Kizito, from Woolwich, had been out of work for six years. He said: "Finally, after intensive support from GLLaB and four interviews, I was successful. I am very happy to have this job as I can now provide for my wife and children. Not working meant that I was at home all day, job searching, bored and disappointed. I was desperate to work and I am very grateful to have this opportunity. I love admin so I'm happy to be doing something I enjoy."

Deborah Ready from Paul Rhodes of London said: "It was very helpful to have GLLaB vetting and collating CVs, resulting in a much quicker shortlisting process for us. Thanks once again for the assistance given to helping us fill this position at such short notice."

To date GLLaB has helped more than 16,000 local people to find jobs or get training. It has also supported people into work who have been affected by the Use £4m to mend our roads

Star Letter

I WAS pleased to see the successful £4 million bid by the royal borough for road improvements. However, it appears that less than one per cent is to be spent on resurfacing roads. Surely the fairest way to use these funds for the benefit of all would be to tackle the dreadful road surfaces existing in many parts of the borough.

In Bexley Road SE9, the royal borough constructed a cycle lane which proved to be too narrow. The first markings were then obliterated which has led to the road breaking up into gravel, much of which is on the pavement, thrown up by passing vehicles. The cyclists, therefore cannot safely ride in the lane so most take to the pavement. From the top of Eltham High Street to the boundary with Bexley this busy road is a mass of potholes and worse. A similar situation exists in Riefeld Road, also SE9 where the approach to the humps is a mass of holes and cracks. I am sure there are many other roads throughout the borough in the same state.

So before we start drawing 20mph roundels on the roads, which are quite unenforceable, could the royal borough please spend the bonus in a way which will benefit and contribute to the safety and well being of all ie: pedestrians, cyclists and motorists?

John Lawton
Riefeld Road, Eltham

● A spokesman for the royal borough said: "We have successfully bid for more than £1m from TfL to spend resurfacing our busiest roads in the next financial year. The royal borough has also agreed to spend an additional £5m to fund a fast track programme of repairs to local roads. After a series of very cold winters and periods of wet weather, this funding will make a significant impact to the condition of the roads. In addition, the royal borough is committed to improving provision for cyclists and reducing road traffic accidents. Recent statistics for the borough show increasing numbers of cyclists and some of the lowest road traffic accident rates in London. TfL has provided further funds for us to continue with these vital improvements."

Can't council curb landlord numbers?

MUCH is heard about high house/home prices. The practice of buying homes solely to let with a view to making a profit must be contributing to high prices. Should the council be doing all in its power to curb the avaricious who do this in order to maximise the return on their investment? Should the government be seeking to reinstate legislation akin to the previous Fair Rent Act in order to attempt to make homes affordable for all? As interest rates rise again it is those with newish mortgages who are likely to be most affected as their repayments rise. Those with debts may also suffer. Perversely, this rise may also increase the number of homes for sale and thus contribute to a lowering or at least a stabilising of house prices because those who currently make, say, five per cent or so from buying to let might then be able to achieve that by other forms of investing and therefore may consider selling up. Homes are to live in and not to let. Homes are necessary for all and shouldn't be game for the greedy who have one but seek to exploit those less 'fortunate'.

Tony Norwell, Abbey Wood

● A spokesman for the royal borough said: "The proportion of people renting privately in the royal borough has gone up significantly in the last ten years. While some people benefit from this flexibility, in some areas of the borough rents are higher than some people can afford, and the quality of rented accommodation is sometimes hampered by inexperienced or inattentive landlords. Although the council is limited in its ability to control the numbers of private rented properties, we are investing significant resources into overcoming issues of affordability and quality. By working with local developers and housing associations, and by developing our own stock, we are working to make more affordable housing available. In the last five years, Royal Greenwich has secured 4,310 affordable homes. Through Meridian Home Start, the council is providing affordable homes to working families who would not be a priority for social housing and who would otherwise be renting in the private rented sector. We are also running several initiatives to improve the quality of private rents. We are developing an accreditation scheme for landlords, which will promote higher standards and best practice. Additional support, advice and help are being provided to landlords and tenants. To tackle rogue landlords who provide over-crowded or unsafe accommodation, we have set up an enforcement taskforce."

Town centre squares win planning award

FOCAL POINT: the award-winning General Gordon Square

THE royal borough-led transformation of Woolwich town centre has won an award from planning experts.

The redevelopment of the borough's biggest town centre was named Best Town Centre Project at the London Planning Awards earlier this month.

The awards recognise development schemes that have made a difference to the capital as a whole.

The Woolwich Squares project scooped the win and was praised by judges for "its subtle yet transformative changes to the way Woolwich Town Centre works, including the provision of a large supermarket, 960 residential units and new Civic Offices."

The town centre facelift has seen a major revamp of General Gordon Square, making it a focal point for the local community and visitors. The square houses a BBC big screen which shows major sporting and cultural events as well as community information.

The project has also seen the reworking of Beresford Square which houses Woolwich

Market. The redevelopment is part of an ambitious programme of regeneration in Woolwich, which has also seen new landmark buildings including the Woolwich Central site and the new Woolwich Centre, which houses a new library and new Royal Borough service centre.

Council leader Chris Roberts said: "Woolwich has changed greatly over the last 2-3 years and these new public spaces and buildings are a clear sign of how the town is growing and regenerating. General Gordon Square in particular is now a wonderful space for the community and we've enjoyed seeing people from all over the borough and visitors enjoying events in the square and children especially enjoying the new water feature.

"Woolwich has also greatly benefitted from a better road layout for buses coming through the town centre.

"These are exciting times for the area, not least with the new Crossrail station due to open in four years. It's brilliant to see our long-held vision for Woolwich becoming a reality."

welfare reforms. A special local labour initiative called the Greenwich Local Labour Programme (GLLP) was set up by the council in response to the changes to the welfare system ten months ago.

It invested £6 million into GLLP which provides paid work placements for people who have been long-term unemployed. More than 121 have completed six-month placements and so far, more than four out of every five people have gone on to find jobs through GLLaB.

A further 31 young residents have been recruited onto a GLLP apprenticeship scheme. Cllr Chris Roberts, leader of the royal borough, said: "I am so proud of the work GLLaB does, and the huge role the service plays in helping local people to find work and in supporting local businesses. I'm especially proud of the achievements of GLLaB and the GLLP initiative in helping those most impacted by the changes to the benefits system.

"As seen from the work we've done with Rhodes, not only can GLLaB help key business to expand their service and offer more employment opportunities, it's also crucial in helping our local residents to secure work and gain essential skills, experience and training too. This is one example of the fine work we do across the borough and why GLLaB is often upheld of an example of best practice."

Trio of noisy neighbours fined

THREE people in the royal borough have been fined for annoying their neighbours by making too much noise, after prosecutions were brought by the council.

Bexley magistrates convicted Charlotte Wickenden of Gossage Road, Plumstead, in her absence on January 27 for breaching a noise abatement notice by playing music too loudly.

She was fined £200 on each of three offences, and ordered to pay a £20 victim surcharge and £733 prosecution costs.

On the same day, Samantha Joy of Ormsby Point, Vincent Road, Woolwich, pleaded guilty to two offences of causing a noise nuisance through playing loud music.

The court heard that she disagreed that the music was too loud. The court fined her £50 for each offence and ordered her to pay a £20 victim surcharge. She was also told to pay court costs of £726.

On February 4, George Leitch of The Redwoods, Congleton Grove, Woolwich, was found guilty of a charge of ignoring a noise abatement notice, after pleading not guilty by post.

He was fined £400, with a victim surcharge of £40 and ordered to pay court costs of £857.

The courts granted forfeiture orders, which means the council can dispose of the music equipment seized from the defendants' homes.

Cllr Maureen O'Mara, the royal borough's cabinet member for community safety and enforcement, said: "These were serious cases, which were recognised as such by the fines imposed.

"Residents who commit antisocial behaviour such as noise nuisance can expect the council to be robust in its actions."

Video highlights service for living independently at home

INDEPENDENT: A Telecare user

A VIDEO has been produced by the Greenwich Telecare Service to show how people can live independently in their own homes.

The royal borough's scheme is a 24-hour, seven-day service that helps people arrange help in an emergency such as a fall.

The video, on the royal borough's website, features interviews with users.

Those eligible for the service are older people, those with disabilities and people who have been victims of hate crimes and domestic violence.

Users describe the Telecare Service as like having another person by their side.

Also explained are options such as an alarm and emergency button, extra sensors and a home security package.

Cllr John Fahy, cabinet member for adults and older people, said: "I am very proud of our Telecare Service. It's an important part of the royal borough's aim in promoting independence for residents and our commitment to providing integrated care options to those who need them.

"I encourage residents to have a look at the video and consider whether they - or someone they know - could benefit."

Pupils win campaign

Students see councillors order safety changes after accident

by Dick Townsend-Smith

CAMPAIGNING students from Woolwich Polytechnic have successfully had road safety measures installed outside their school.

They were determined to see action taken after one of the pupils had to be airlifted to hospital after an accident.

They presented their campaign to the council's highways committee last year, and were invited to go along to a follow-up committee in January to hear the outcome.

Some of the student council were invited to tea with Cllr Angela Cornforth, the Mayor of Royal Greenwich, in her parlour before hearing what the committee had decided.

During their hour with the mayor the students were able to ask questions, saw the mayoral chains and robes, and were given the opportunity to role-play a council meeting in the council chamber.

They then went into the committee meeting, and heard first-hand how their presentation and hard work had directly influenced the committee. The changes that were agreed and scheduled to come in from March are:

● Reducing the speed limit from 40mph to 30mph on Central Way, and from 30mph to 20mph on Bentham Road

● Making the dual carriageway a single lane for traffic with the other as a bus and cycle lane

● Narrowing the width of the neck of the road entering and exiting the roundabout

● Introducing vehicle-activated speed signs on both Bentham Road and Central Way, and a crossing on the Aldi side of the Central Way roundabout.

Joint headteacher Tim Plumb said: "We're immensely proud of our student council, who are making a change not only for those at Woolwich Polytechnic School but for all those in the local community."

The students were Ali Mohammed, Abdullahi

ACTION REWARDED:
Pupils with Mayor Cllr Angela Cornforth see democracy in action

Abdullahi, Aadam Bocus, Praise Mtetwa, Segun Okunnu, Louis Richards-Miller and Samuel Olawaju.

Praise said: "This project has been a real eye opener. It has made me feel like I have done a really positive thing not just for myself and my school but also for our local community.

"I have learned more about the process of how governments and councils work and I think it might be something I want to get into in the future."

IT was the perfect Valentine's Day for happy couple Lydia Wharf and Luiz Demeicis when they tied the knot in the picturesque surroundings of Charlton House last Friday (Feb 14). Their dream wedding was made possible when they won a spectacular Valentine's Day competition featured in Greenwich Time last year.

It was a memorable day, with a South

American feel to the ceremony with new husband Luiz coming from Brazil.

There were traditional cakes from his homeland, as well as a Peruvian harpist serenading guests.

Couples can create their very own perfect day by booking the Jacobean mansion for their wedding.

Hospitals consultation date

ENGLAND'S chief inspector of hospitals is urging residents to have their say on local NHS services at a consultation event at Charlton House on February 25.

Their views and experiences will help inspectors decide what to look at when they inspect the Queen Elizabeth and Lewisham Hospitals later this month. The event starts at 6.30pm and the public will have the chance to tell the inspection panel what they think of the services provided by Lewisham and Greenwich NHS Trust and where they would like to see improvements made. The trust is among the first to be inspected and given an overall rating under changes introduced by the Care Quality Commission.

ROYAL BOROUGH OF GREENWICH

Stamp of approval for King's Troop's working horses

THE contribution horses make to the King's Troop in Woolwich have been commemorated by the Royal Mail.

A set of stamps has been released including the King's Troop ceremonial horses as the Royal Mail celebrated the contribution working horses make to life in Britain.

The troop's 111 horses are based at the unit's purpose-built equestrian facility at Woolwich Garrison.

Gunner Calum Pearson, 22, is now hoping for an influx of mail. He posed with the first class stamp which depicts a charger from the King's Troop Royal Horse Artillery.

It shows the Army's Ceremonial Saluting Battery, who did the Royal Gun Salute in Hyde Park on February 6, 2012 to mark the anniversary of the Accession to the Throne of Her Majesty The Queen and the start of celebrations for Her Diamond Jubilee.

Calum, the centre driver for 'D' Sub Section in the King's Troop, from Gairloch in the Scottish Highlands, said: "I'm proud to be part of the Royal Mail Stamp launch and really pleased I got to hold 'our' stamp. I'll be encouraging all my friends and family to get writing letters to me and make sure they stick the King's Troop stamp on the envelopes!"

Lance Bombardier Emma Playford, 26, riding Jaeger, and Gunner Joshua Ratcliffe, riding Laura, are also pictured.

Horses from the Riding for the Disabled Association, Dray Horses, Royal Mews Carriage Horses, Police Horses and a Forestry Horse are the others featured on the six-stamp set.

For more than 6,000 years the working horse has made a significant contribution to life and labour in human culture.

The King's Troop Royal Horse Artillery, set up by King George V, a British Army mounted unit, is responsible for firing Royal Salutes on State occasions.

It provides a gun carriage and a team of black horses for State and military funerals, and performs the duties of the Queen's Life Guard at Horse Guards Parade for one month every summer.

● The stamps are available at Post Offices or online at www.royalmail.com/workinghorses and by phone on 08457 641 641.

The band marches on

MUSICAL SEND OFF:
A crowd watches as the Royal Artillery Band plays in Woolwich square before ending more than 250 years association with the borough

A MIXTURE of emotions was experienced by hundreds of residents as the royal borough waved goodbye to the Royal Artillery Band.

The soldiers marched out of Woolwich Barracks for the last time on February 9 and gave residents a musical send off by performing in General Gordon Square.

Residents came from across the borough to witness the occasion.

Elizabeth Donoghue, from Blackheath, said: "It was a fantastic day. I got quite a good view and managed to get some good pictures."

"The service was lovely, but very sad. They've been here a long time and I thought it would be nice to go down to support them.

"I've lived in Greenwich all my life and I used to go to the barracks when I was a kid."

The band is moving to Tidworth in Wiltshire, ending an association with Woolwich that goes back more than 250 years, in which time they have played all over the world. The changes are part of a restructuring initiative by the Ministry of Defence.

Band members past and present performed. The Mayor of the royal borough, Cllr Angela Cornforth, honoured band members with medals.

In return, the band gave the royal borough their banner, which was presented to them about 100 years ago.

They also handed over a shell case that had been presented to the band during their recent deployment to Afghanistan.

The band decided that they would prefer it to stay in Woolwich on their departure.

Pic spot comp winners

GT readers have chosen the Tulip staircase in the Queen's House, Greenwich, as their favourite shot in our Pic spot competition.

The upward view of the swirling staircase was taken by Patricia Seward making her the winner of a photography masterclass with a professional photographer.

Patricia who uses a 650 D Canon digital and a Panasonic DF1 said: "I work for a metal sheet company and I thought the workmanship of the staircase was phenomenal. I positioned myself so I could get an angle right up to the ceiling."

Patricia's photo was one of eight chosen from dozens which appeared in our p2 Pic spot feature last year.

The eight shots were all of special vistas across the borough and readers were asked to vote for their favourite.

In second place was the tranquil scene of trees in Oxleas Wood taken by Graham Mundy who wins a 12x16

FACE of a fresh start

SUPPORT for the borough's campaign to tackle domestic violence has come from two mothers who have experienced it at first hand.

Faye Garwood and Cassie Taylor set up an award-winning support group for other vulnerable women to help them move on, and make a fresh start.

They decided to launch FACE, which stands for Faye and Cassie's Empowerment, after meeting at a children's centre.

They run a drop-in centre at Halton Court, Kidbrooke, each Monday providing emotional and practical support, plus advice from visiting experts. The group supports local women who feel isolated, vulnerable and alone and more than three-quarters of their members have experienced domestic violence.

Recent speakers have come from the Miscarriage Association and the Mothers of Sexually Abused Children (MOSAC) group, who talked about the signs of abuse and how to educate children of the dangers. Other visitors have talked about job opportunities, crime prevention, housing, money, and victim support. Eltham MP Clive Efford recently went to meet members and ran a half-hour surgery.

There have also been speakers from the HER Centre, the borough's women-led charity, which is a partner in the Royal Greenwich Against Domestic Violence Campaign, launched earlier this month.

The two women are firmly behind the royal borough's new campaign.

Cassie said: "It's fantastic that it is happening. You need to get it all out into the open. Most women are frightened to come forward to say anything, and this creates a whole wall of silence. Faye and I have both experienced horrendous domestic violence and going through the courts, so we are highly qualified with what we do."

The mum-of-three who studied health and social care at Greenwich Community College and was presented with an award for her work with FACE, added: "It needs to be made clear from the outset that this is not about blaming abused women, it's about making them realise they deserve better, and helping them to change their lives. It's about turning their lives around – and showing them they don't have to be stuck where they are."

Faye, who did victim support training, added: "We talk to people about their problems, then go off and find the agencies to help them get the support and advice they need. We are about empowering women to change their lives. We have run beauty days and children's days and we're working with the Greenwich Community College to offer 'learning together' sessions for mums and classes in paediatric first aid."

Game for gamelan

Greenslade pupils enjoy a taste of Indonesian music

A GAMELAN OF TWO HALVES: left, pupils with their gamelan instruments, inset, classmates perform in a shadow puppet show PUPILS had a chance to learn about the traditional music of Indonesia when gamelan musician Aris Daryono visited their school.

The youngsters from Greenslade Primary School in Plumstead, played instruments and performed in an Indonesian shadow puppet show for the event, part funded by the Indonesian embassy. Hailing from the islands of Java and Bali, gamelan features a range of instruments including metallophones, xylophones, gongs, bamboo flutes and string instruments.

Aris Daryono is a traditional gamelan player who is also trained in western classical music and combines both traditions in his own compositions. Headteacher David Ashley said: "The children also heard traditional Indonesian tales and drew on this inspiration to write their own stories. Each class brought a story to life in a multimedia performance using shadow puppets which they made while class members played Indonesian gamelan instruments."

Grants for green open house event

SUPPORTERS of green technologies could get a share of £20,000 in grants to showcase their environmentally-friendly home improvements to others. The money is available through Green Open Homes, a national network which aims to support low carbon retrofit – making older properties greener by installing modern technology such as double glazing or more efficient insulation – by providing resources, practical support and funding.

Green Open Homes is inviting organisations, community groups, local authorities and private businesses to apply for grants ranging from £500 to £2,000 to help support an open homes event. Grants will be awarded fortnightly on a first come, first served basis until the funding pot runs out. Events must take place before the end of May 2014.

THIRTY young people have the chance to win a ticket to the adventure of a lifetime.

The council is sponsoring 30 places for crew members as part of its support for September's Tall Ships regatta, which will end in Greenwich.

Up to 50 of the world's most spectacular tall ships are due to set out on the race from Falmouth via the Isle of Wight in an event organised by Sail Training International.

The young people will be taken on and trained as working crew members. No previous sailing is necessary – just a taste for adventure and excitement!

Applications close at the end of March and are open to anyone aged 16 to 25 who lives or studies in the borough. Details are now being distributed by schools, youth clubs, the Charlton Athletic Community Trust and other organisations.

For young people, it's a unique opportunity to learn new skills, make friends, and have memories that will stay with them for the rest of their lives.

They will be sailing on an A class tall ship which are the largest and most magnificent ships in the fleet. And they will experience the thrill of sailing a tall ship and being part of a sailing race team before cruising into London.

Two young people who have already experienced sailing a tall ship are Storm Smith-Suckoo from Charlton and Suzy Cooper from Greenwich who are now visiting local schools to encourage students to sign up.

Although the council is sponsoring 30 places, other people of all ages can take part if they are able to fund their own applications.

Depending on the size of the ship, it will cost around £90 a day to cover the cost of a berth, training, safety equipment, wet weather gear, food and drink.

Local businesses are already coming forward with offers of sponsorship, and clubs, youth and community groups, families and neighbours are all being asked to lend their support.

Cllr Chris Roberts, leader of the royal borough, said: "The Tall Ships Regatta is a fantastic opportunity for local people of all ages to have an experience like no other. Greenwich has a rich maritime past, and is a fitting venue for a world-class sailing spectacle that will attract widespread attention from many quarters."

RECRUITING: Suzy Cooper and Storm Smith-Suckoo (centre) tell Megan Armson and Ayden Barjam about their adventures at sea

Storm and Suzy's adventures on the STUDENTS from the John Roan school have been hearing thrilling first-hand accounts of life on the high seas from two of their schoolmates.

Suzy Cooper, 15, and Storm Smith-Suckoo, 17, presented an assembly to around 100 pupils last Wednesday (February 12), encouraging them to sign up for this year's Falmouth-Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Regatta in September.

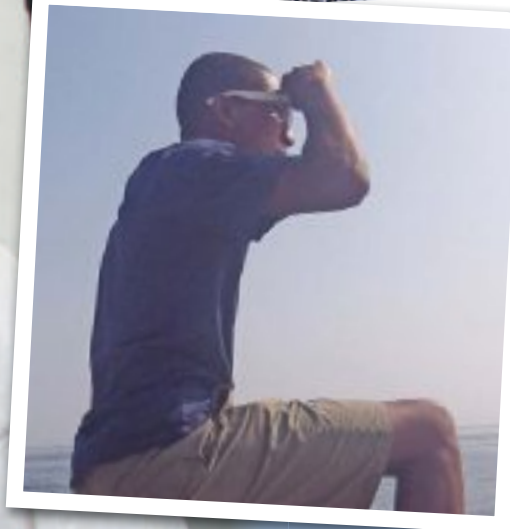

The event offers young people the chance to learn new skills and crew some of the vessels on a once-in-a-lifetime adventure. And up to 30 young people aged 16-25 who live or study in the borough could get sponsorship from the royal borough. However, anyone aged over 16 can take part in the voyage, and help ensure the nine-day regatta is a big success. Both Suzy and Storm sailed on a tall ship last year and are now ambassadors for this year's race, which involves telling other young people about the benefits of sail training. They are both members of the local Ahoy Centre sailing club which nominated them to become ambassadors to get more young people involved.

Storm, from Charlton, said: "I'm in the sixth form at John Roan, and I was a bit nervous about giving the school our presentation. Suzy and I wrote it, and we rehearsed it with each other. We spoke to them about Sail Training International and our experiences, and how they could get involved. "We said that the meeting new people, life, taking part in navigation and morning, sometimes questions like 'do' is that you don't said not unless you." "We are looking next few months," Suzy said. "I think the high seas

They would benefit from team-building, people, who could become friends for in a fantastic experience, learning about rigging – and how you have to get up in the times at 4am, to set the sails. They asked us to you have to be able to swim, and the answer was yes. And 'do you have to climb the rigging, and I want to. I'm forward to going into more schools over the years. Thank people responded very well to us. I was quite nervous as well, because there were faces in the audience that we knew. Next time it will be to people we don't know in another school, and we will find it a lot easier." Their presentation left their audience thrilled. Student Megan Armson said: "Suzy and Storm talked about their experiences very well. I used to sail, and this looks a great way to be able to do it again. I hope to be able to get on board and take part." And student Ayden Barjam said: "When I heard of the ambassadors I was intrigued to know more. I think it would be a great way to meet other people, and learn new things." ● For more information about becoming a crew member for the regatta visit www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/tallships

Signed up to set sail

MORE and more people are signing up for the adventure of a lifetime. They want to take part in the thrilling five-day race from Falmouth, around the Isle of Wight and on to Greenwich. Up to 50 majestic vessels are expected to take part. It will be the first time in 25 years that London has played host to a major international tall ships regatta – with Greenwich as the host port. The event is set to attract boats old and new, and hundreds of local people have the opportunity to get on board as trainee crew members. They include Stuart Mills, 37, who knows all about life under the sea - but never actually sailed on it. Stuart is a fish trader at Billingsgate market, and sees the race as a unique chance to be trained as a sailor. He said: "It's going to be exciting and good fun. I'm smiling at the chance of being like Capt Jack Sparrow, but mostly I just want the whole experience, working with like-minded bubbly people. Sailing is something I have admired from afar for a long time so I want to be able to come away from it with a bit of knowledge so I can do more." He added: "I'm applying to go on the Morgenster, which is a very tall Dutch ship. My son Joshua, 17, who used to be a student at Crown Woods College, wants to take part as well but he hasn't yet decided which ship to apply for."

A steer for shore crew

THE deadline for volunteer stewards has been extended until this Friday (Feb 21).

The stewards are needed to help visitors find their way around the ships which will be moored along the Greenwich riverside from September 5-9.

To be eligible, volunteers need to live, work or study in the borough. They are being recruited and trained by the Volunteer Centre in Greenwich. More than 70 people have already come forward to be trained as uniformed guides. For around 20 of them it will be just like old times. They were part of the celebrated Gamesmakers squad during the 2012 Olympics, and will performing a similar meeting-and-greeting role for the Tall Ships event.

Volunteers include Mo Adams, who was a team leader in Greenwich during the Olympics. She worked in Greenwich Park, the Old Royal Naval College, and near Greenwich market, beating the drum for the town, helping to direct people, giving them directions, and giving out local information. Mo, a PA for an NHS nursing manager, said: "It was all about building up people's enthusiasm, and it was great to get feedback from them saying what a good job we were doing. It's such a great opportunity to be a volunteer. Helping people and socialising with them is great, and helps you develop as a person. I'm really looking forward to doing it again during the Tall Ships race."

Talker of the towns

IT'S easy to wax lyrical on the world's greatest cities. The romance of Paris, the beachfront in Cannes, the wonderful harbour in Sydney. But finding humour in towns long forgotten is harder and it takes no little courage to try. "Mark Steel is in Town," now in its 5th series on Radio 4, has found the ultimate formula - solid research, gentle ribbing and style. Touring the UK with his eponymous show, Mark Steel returned to a favourite haunt on Saturday night (Feb 15). "Blackheath Halls is fantastic," he told GT Time, "and when full, there is no better place". Born down in Swanley, Steel came up the hard way - an orphan and adopted at birth. But Fleet Street columns (The Guardian and The Independent) got him started, the radio followed (The Mark Steel Solution) and his last tour of Britain sold out.

"Comics are different from actors," he insisted, "it's spontaneity from the audience that we want". Genuinely taken with the towns that he visits, he scores points with the locals for his research. He teases, cajoles but stays the safe side of rude, but "sometimes I'm right on the edge". Not naturally funny, his humour is clever, his delivery relaxed and unhurried. He effortlessly slides from the towns to the high street and no retailer is safe from his barbs; from the staff down at Subway who make "sarnies with luminescent gloves" to the "supposed" chicken they serve down at Nandos. The town history exhausted, he moves on to himself and his phobia of anything new; from remotes and computers and touch screens and phones and his favourite and most hated, the call centre; "if our call matters...how about picking up the phone," he laments. A loyal Crystal Palace supporter, he couldn't resist a dig at the Addicks; "I like their new strategy of not losing by waterlogging the pitch." His crescendo's a rant of phenomenal venom but there's rhythm and structure and pace. He's not quite a Macintyre nor a Merton nor Boyle but he is sharp and he's witty and he has great natural charm.

Richard Morgan

WITH fire raging out of a block of flats on the Connaught housing estate, it was no wonder that somebody called the fire brigade.

But when firefighters arrived, they merely watched for a while until they were called to a real emergency, because the commotion was all part of a new SKY1 drama The Smoke.

Real firefighters had already been told about the filming, but were duty bound to respond to the shout having been called.

About 1,500 letters had been sent out to residents warning them of what was going to take place for the night-time filming for the series, which starts on Thursday.

Explaining how parts of the drama came to be filmed in the royal borough, director Chris Fry said: "The series is set in East London. We looked at estates in all sorts of places.

"We needed to do a quite a huge fire and after an extensive search we decided the Connaught estate in Woolwich worked perfectly.

"It wasn't just a high rise building, but it had character to it.

"Greenwich film unit were incredibly helpful and accommodating and wanted to work with us. They are by far the most helpful council film office in London.

"Greenwich were really proactive and you don't always get people who are keen to bring filming to their borough.

"I've worked on several series of Spooks [the BBC spy drama] and it became harder and harder to film in London," he said, adding that lessons for many could be learnt from the United States.

"In New York they shut streets down for you. They see it as a benefit, because all it does is bring money and interest to New York."

Some of the team who worked on The Smoke are involved with the next series of US drama 24 - Live Another Day, starring Keifer Sutherland, and they also have filmed at the Connaught estate.

IAN LAMONT talks to the director of a new tv series
shot in Greenwich

CONNAUGHT IN THE ACT: The estate in Woolwich proved perfect for the makers of The Smoke, a drama about firefighters. Right, Mal (Rhashan Stone) consoles a woman as a fire drama unfolds

"It doesn't surprise me, because they have had a great experience with Greenwich," added Fry, whose filming took place in April through to September last year.

Other locations used include an old Tate & Lyle building by The O2 arena, where they built sets for fires and also used it to stage a cage fight in episode three of the drama, and Sherington Road, Charlton.

Greenwich Film Unit's bumper year in 2013 involved working with productions such as Mortdecai - starring Johnny Depp due for release in 2015 - the new Inbetweeners film The Long Goodbye, The Woman in Black: Angel of Death, The Man

From U.N.C.L.E. as well as numerous television adverts.

The Smoke is an eight-part series starting on February 20 on SKY1 at 9pm, starring Jamie Bamber (Battlestar Galactica) and Jodie Whittaker (Broadchurch)

GreenwichHomes

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 379

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.
Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of three ways

Small is beautiful

Under Occupation scheme

If you are living in a Council property that is too big for you, we can help you to move to somewhere smaller. The Council will pay your removal costs, and £350 for each bedroom gained.

To join the scheme you must be willing to move to a home with two bedrooms less than you have now:

- 3 bedroom to a 1 bedroom home
- 3 bedroom parlour / 4 bedroom to a 1 or 2 bedroom home
- 5 bedroom to a 3 bedroom (or smaller) home

Please note under the scheme we cannot consider tenants for a move to a house if they currently live in a flat or maisonette.

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR ROYAL BOROUGH TENANTS WHO ARE MOVING

DON'T GET A BILL AFTER YOU LEAVE

Under the conditions of your tenancy agreement, you have a responsibility to leave your property in an acceptable state of repair. We may visit you to check this. If we consider your property is in an unacceptable condition, you may be prevented from moving or be recharged for work.

To avoid getting an unwelcome bill, follow these rules:

- Repair any damage caused to the property by you, your family or visitors to your home.
- Make good any changes you have made to your property e.g. put back any doors that you have removed.
- Make sure your garden is not overgrown and you have cleared all garden waste.
- Clear all your items from the inside and the outside of the property. This includes any loft space, external cupboards or sheds.
- Return all the keys to the Royal Borough's offices no later than midday on Monday (or Tuesday if it is a Bank Holiday). You will be charged a further week's rent if you do not return your keys on time.

If you leave repairs that are your responsibility, or items that require disposal you will be charged the cost of this work.

Simply contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661 and tell them where you live and what you would like taken away.

Items we will collect include:

Items we DO NOT collect include:

Fitted kitchens, bathroom suites, boilers, sheds, fences and rubble.

Have you got experience in working with Early Years/Primary aged children with Autism in a mainstream setting and like working in a team? We are looking for a new member to join the well established ASD Outreach Service in Greenwich for primary aged children.

Providing support to education staff in mainstream primary schools and early years settings, you would be working alongside staff, supporting them with specialist strategies and modelling interventions to enable students to make the best progress possible. The Outreach Service includes teachers, speech and language therapists and other professionals who are there to support you in your practice. You would be travelling across the Borough but based in Eltham and it would be an advantage to be a car user.

Sabre rattler!

Young fencer takes first national title

by Ian Lamont

JONATHAN 'JJ' Webb has chalked up his first national title by becoming the British fencing under-20s champion.

The 17-year-old sabre fencer, in his first year in the age-group, went into the competition ranked British under-20s No 1 after qualifying to represent his country in March's European Championships.

The Greenwich resident fought off six rivals in the pool stages of the sabre competition in Docklands, East London.

Then the Starting Blocks-supported fencer defeated four more opponents on the way to the final, where he faces fellow Camden Fencing Club member Rubin Amsalem.

Having won two previous rounds by the narrow margin of 15-13 - and one 15-1 - JJ fended off his rival 15-12 in a tight final to take the crown.

He said: "It's always difficult to come up against a fellow club member because you train with them day in, day out, but it happens and especially in the later rounds of tournaments.

"It's very nice to take the national title, because that's my first one. I've topped the rankings a few times but not won a national title.

"The semi-final and final were difficult fights. The one after I won 15-1 looked quite close on paper and I made it a bit difficult for myself."

JJ has little time to recover before flying to Jerusalem to compete in the European under-20s championships at the end of the month.

Despite being at the youngest end of the age-group, he has high ambitions.

"I've had a mixed season of international results," he said. "Sometimes I've got where I thought I should be and sometimes results have been disappointing.

"Maybe I can finish in the top 32 or top 16. It's a difficult tournament and I just want to see what I can do."

Starting Blocks is a charity set up by the royal borough to give financial support to promising sports men and women. It currently supports about 50 athletes and the deadline to apply for 2014 funding is Thursday (February 20).

It is open to those who live or go to school in the borough.
